

New Directions in Qualitative Health Research

From Patient Experiences to Participatory Action Research

Date: Monday November 5

Time: 9:00 – 17:00

Location: University Medical Center Groningen

Program

- 9.00 Registration and coffee
- 9.30 Opening by chair of the day
- 9.35 Welcome to Groningen – city of Healthy Ageing
- 9.40 Opening session: What is the point about collecting data on patient experiences?:
- 9.45 What is the point about collecting data on patient experiences - Mark Schlesinger, Yale School of Public Health and Rachel Grob, University of Wisconsin
  - 10.30 Healthy intermezzo (physical exercises)
  - 10.35 Digital vs in person interviews and focus groups – what is gained and what is lost? A systematic review - Louise Davies, Dartmouth college
- 11.05 Coffee/tea break
- 11.30 Parallel sessions:
- Online interviews and online focus group interviews - Lisa Hinton, Oxford University, and Manna Alma, UMCG Applied Health Research
  - Qualitative analysis of online forum discussions about mental health problems in young Moroccan-Dutch people – Madelien van der Beek, Dimence
  - Online illness narratives and webcare interaction: an investigation of linguistic features – Joyce Lamerichs, VU Amsterdam
- 12.15: Lunch, lunch walks and meet the expert sessions:
- o Focus group interviews
  - o In-depth interviews
  - o Interviewing children
  - o Online research
  - o Analysis of qualitative data
  - o Cultural issues
  - o Participatory action research
- 13:30 Presentation book Illness narratives in practice – Christine Holmberg
- 13.35 Participation in participatory action research: who, what for and how? – Gaby Jacobs, Fontys Hogeschool & University of Humanistic Studies
- 14.15 Parallel sessions:
- “Acceleration rooms”: digital brainstorm activities – Marian Feitsma, CMO Stamm
  - Using rich pictures to collect emotional responses - Esther Helmich, UMCG, Institute for Medical Education
  - Dementia Diaries the Netherlands - Collecting data among people with dementia by using audio diaries – Rikke Komen, Zerline Henning en Bram de Man, Tao of Care
- 15:05 Healthy fruit break
- 15.20 Closing session: What next? Connections to low-and middle income countries
- 15.25 Performing Arab Cancer: Patient narratives on stage – Abir Hamdar, Durham University
  - 15.50 Where next? The potential and the challenges of learning from experiences in low and middle income countries – Lisa Hinton, Oxford University
- 16.20 Closing by chair
- 16.30 Drinks